NGA deputy director to focus on intelligence integration in San Antonio

SPRINGFIELD, Va. — National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency Deputy Director Sue Gordon will highlight the importance of intelligence integration at the annual DoD Intelligence Information Systems (DoDIIS) Worldwide Conference in San Antonio, Texas, August 24.

Gordon will discuss the value of improved intelligence integration, highlighting current accomplishments in information technology, including the implementation of the Intelligence Community common operating environment, managing big data and utilizing cloud technology during a keynote address at the Henry B. Gonzales Convention Center at 10:45 a.m.

The DoDIIS Worldwide Conference, hosted by the Defense Intelligence Agency Chief Information Office August 23-26, is an annual conference dedicated to unifying the defense intelligence infrastructure and information sharing initiatives through innovation, collaborative partnerships and technologies.
